NEWNESS EVERYWHERE

With so much to see, and newness everywhere distinguishing it, general suggestions only can be made.

Dress Goods deserve particular attention. The novelties are striking. We are, you know, large importers, and goods found in this department cannot be got elsewhere in this city. There are new Silks and Satins, the latter the popular material for dresses. We have it in all shades and qualities. Velvets, Persians and Bengalines, in all the new weaves. We have a complete stock, and here we are fully prepared to meet the wants of our customers. We beg our friends to note that Madam Aver and Madam Phelps, who are at present in the East getting styles and procuring dress novelties, will open the Dressmaking Rooms Monday, Sept. 4. We beg further to call attention to the fact that Madam Thomas is home from New York, and will have on display Monday next, Sept. 4, all that comprises a choice Millinery Stock. New pattern Hats. the latest trimmings, the choicest selections.

LINCOLN NO SPIRITUALIST. His Son Denies the Story in Most Positive Language.

Alvin P. Hovey, Spencer's Hall, West Indian-

Market street.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia Press. In your issue of July 30, in an unsigned article on "Judge Duiley Has Seen Ghosts. you quote him as saying "Abraham Lincoln was a spiritualist." You should not malign the honored dead without more thoroughy investigating the subject as a reputable journal. Judge Dafley is in error and you magnify it by giving it wide circulation or else your reporter misquoted him, as the following copy of a letter from Hon. Robert T. Lincoln will show. This denial, so full and unequivocal, was in answer to an inquiry as to the correctness of a clipping from a paper published in Philadelphia, which read as follows: 'spiritualism is gaining ground," a downtown medium remarked the other day. "and it is not surprising when you think of how many of our distinguished men are spiritualists at heart and in practice, too, if it were only known, President Lincoln was a spiritualist, and bad a medium living in the White House. Among the measures | any address for 35 cents. inspired by this means and fathered by

Duncan, West Milton, Camp Lew Wallace.

His son, Col. Robert T. Lincoln, now sends to Pittsburg for a certain medium who resides there whenever he wishes to converse with his lamented father."

> "CHICAGO, June 7, 1887. "Sir-In reply to your inquiry of June 2, I beg to advise you that there is not a single word of truth in either part of the paragraph you quote, nor any foundation therefor. Very respectfully yours.

"ROBERT T. LINCOLN." It behooves you. Mr. Editor, to give this as wide a circulation as the former article in question. Yours for the truth, C. F. SLEEPER PALMYRA, N. J., Aug. 14, 1893.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND. Some of the Distinguishing Features of This Famous Institution. Harrison's Magazine. One of the first objects of interest upon entering the building is the builton office. where all the gold and silver that enters or leaves the bank passes through to be checked. On the right is the gold; on the left the silver. The prominent feature of the room is the "Grand Balance," or scales, constructed by the Messrs. Napier. This marvelous instrument is a ponderous and peculiarly built weighing machine, standing nearly seven feet high and weighing about two tons. The whole is under a huge glass case, access being gained thereto by a sliding panel. The scale is worked by hydraulto power, and is the most sensitive weighing machine in existence. On each side the scales are fitted with weights amounting to four hundred ounces. The gold is made up in four-hundred-onne bars, and the difference of one-thousandth part of an onnce can be detected. By a manipulation of the machine, so tiny athing as a postage stamp can be weighed, for on the same being placed upon the scale the index will jump a distance of no less than six inches. It is the only balance of its

The silver scale is not so finely balanced and the two are respectively christene "The Lord Chief Justice" and the "Lord High Chancellor." In another room are several machines for weighing sovereigns and balf sovereigns. Each machine consists of a complicated system of counter weights, and is not unlike a sewing machine as to its lower half. the whole being completely inclosed in glass. A long feeder, like a tube out in half down its length, and made of brass, is set at an angle of forty-five degrees, and is filled with a long row of sovereigns. These turn as they slip down on to a circular movable plate, slightly larger than a sovereign. If the coin is of the right weight, it slips down a metal tube into a till below. Should, however, it prove to be lighter than the standard the delicate machine turns to the left, and condemnais to the guillotide. These machines weigh kind in the world, and cost exactly £2,000.

coins at the rate of twenty-six per minute, and a day's weighing at the bank amounts to about £100,000. Another interesting feature is to be found in the vaults containing the defunct paper circulation of the bank. Some idea can be gained of the quantity when we say that they are over 77,000,000 in number, and that they fill 1,400 boxes, which, if placed side by side, would reach two and a half miles. If the notes were placed in a pile they would reach a height of five and a half miles; or, if joined end to end, would form a ribbon 12,455 miles long. Their superficial extent is little less than Hyde Park; their original value was over 1,750 million pounds, and their weight exceeds ninety and a half tons. Among them is a note for £1,000,000, also the first bank note ever issued, one for £500; and another for £250 left at the bank for 111 years, whose accumulated interest raised its value to The printing of the existing paper ourrency is an interesting process. The notes are struck off two at a time on hand-made paper, which, upon being cut, gives three rough edges and one smooth one to each piece of paper-a distinguishing feature of a Bank of England note. The paper is manufactured at the bank's own mill, and the production of it is intrusted entirely to the members of one family. The ink used in printing the notes is made from the charred stem of the Rhenish vine, which is believed to produce the richest black of any ink in the world. Each strip of paper has to be strictly accounted for, the whole process being under effective super-

Vision. The bank can boast of possessing the wealthiest room in the world, in the shape of a kind of vault surrounded from floor to coiling by iron safes containing rows upon rows of gold coin in bags of £2,000 each, and pile upon pile of bank notes. The amount of specie contained in this room alone is not less than eighty million pounds sterling. Not tue least interesting feature in connection with the bank is the fact that the whole system from beginning to end is under constant police espionage, in addition to military protection, and the electric arrangements are so complete that communication with all parts of the building can be effected at a moment's notice. What Comes Next?

New York Herald. Now that its repeal is a foregone conclusion, he question arises as to what will come next. Perhaps the best thing for Congress to do when this work is accomplished is to go home and give the country a rest and leave the people of all sections to pull themselves together and prepare for the reconstruction of the tariff and the whole monetary system when the Horse and Schale shall reconvene next December. A Versatile Financier.

Louisville Commercial. Mr. Voornees, the chairman of the Senate committee on finance, is a financier from way back. There are people who remember when, in his eloquent speeches, he used to hold up some greenbacks between his finzers and say that he expected to see the time when a bushel of them would not buy a man's dinner. Mr. Voorboos 16 a great tinancial leader for a great party.
